A painted head of Picasso's design.

To create a style in art or music is, in any day or age, a difficult problem in creativity. Pablo Picasso has been an innovator of styles and methods throughout his life. He is a legend in the art world who is still at work.

Born in 1881 in Malaga, Spain, he mastered the realistic technique by age 14 and, at 16, was running his own studio in Barcelona, where he had dropped out of the School of Fine Art.

His work ranged through "periods", when one overall theme or color highlighted his efforts. His "blue" period was when he was impoverished and just settling in Paris. His "rose" period was when he began to find success and associated with talented people in other fields, such as Gertrude Stein, the writer. His "African" period, by 1907, was when he worked with primitive and archaic art of the African tribes.

In 1908, he and Georges Braque produced works which came to be known as Cubism, based on simultaneous viewing of one object from many points of view. It was a new expression and, even as painters around the world emulated it, Picasso entered his "classic" period, marked by figures of monumental proportions.

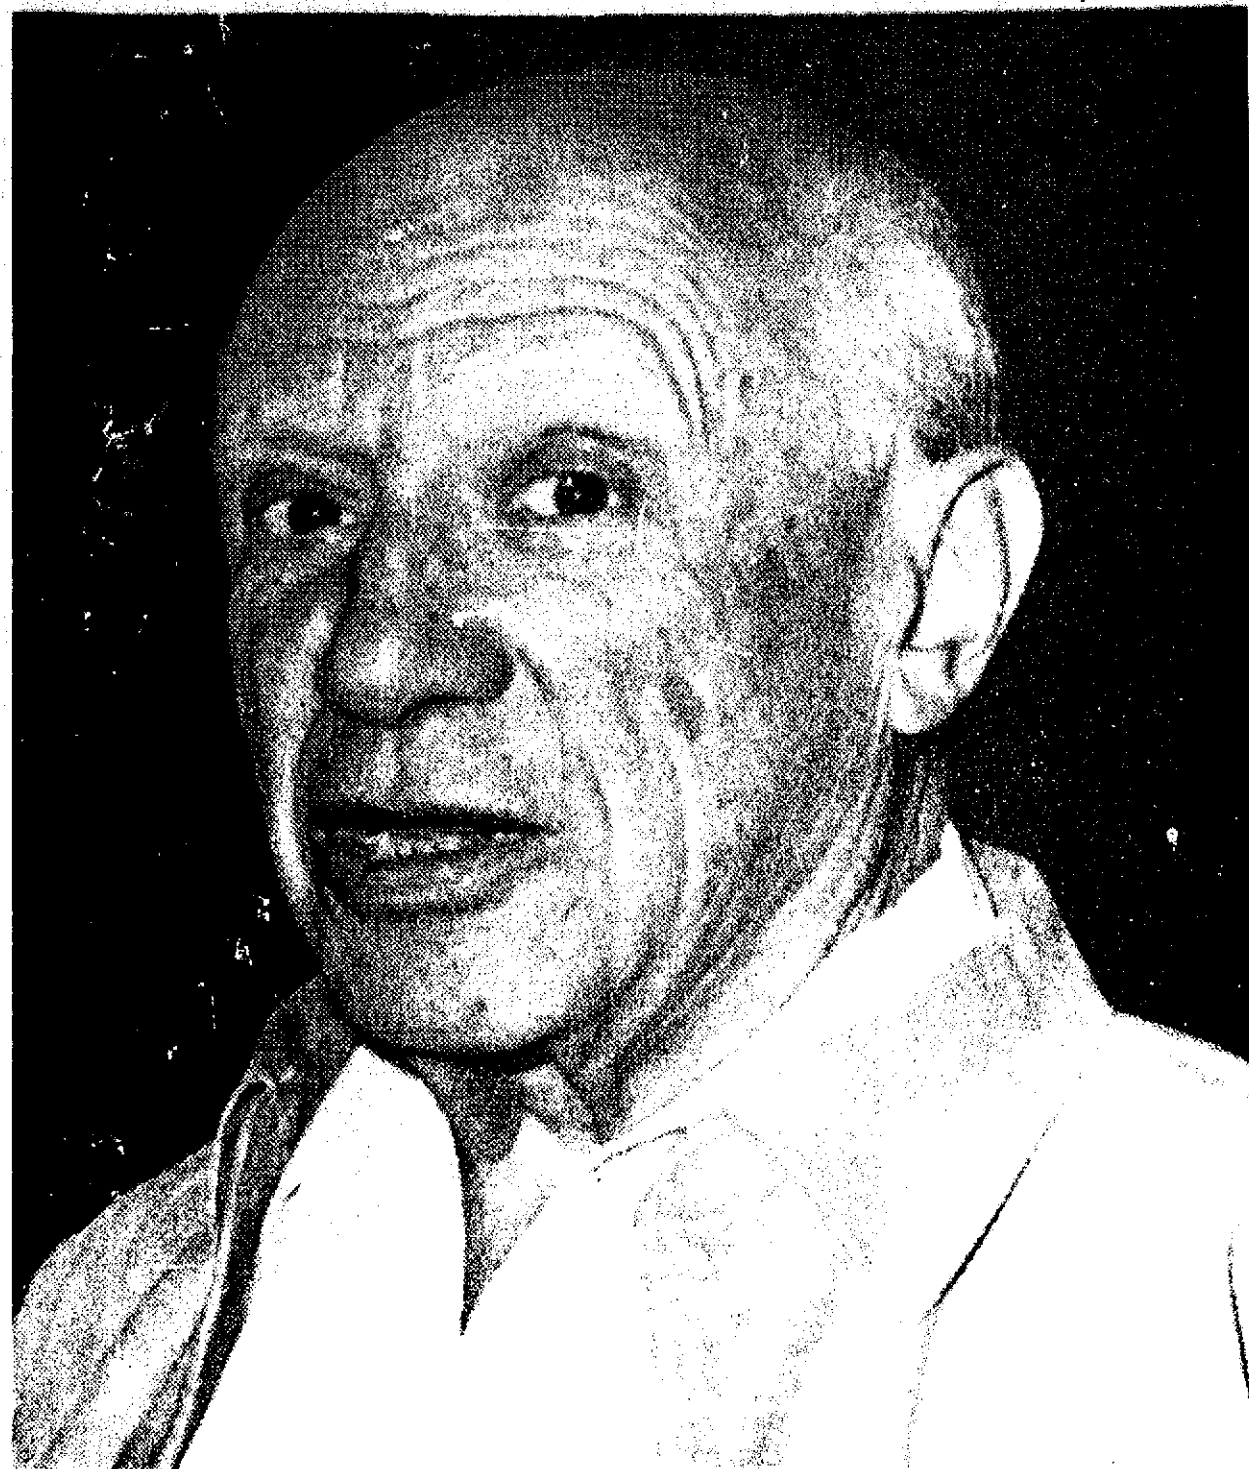

Just prior to World War II, he touched surrealism, that art which depicts the happenings of the unconscious mind, but he moved away from such a style. During the War, despite Nazi condemnation, he continued to produce his sometimes horrifying distortions of his subjects, but never in a surrealistic sense.

Afterward, he entered into the "found objects" period, making art from whatever came to hand. This led to the study of folded sheet metal creations.

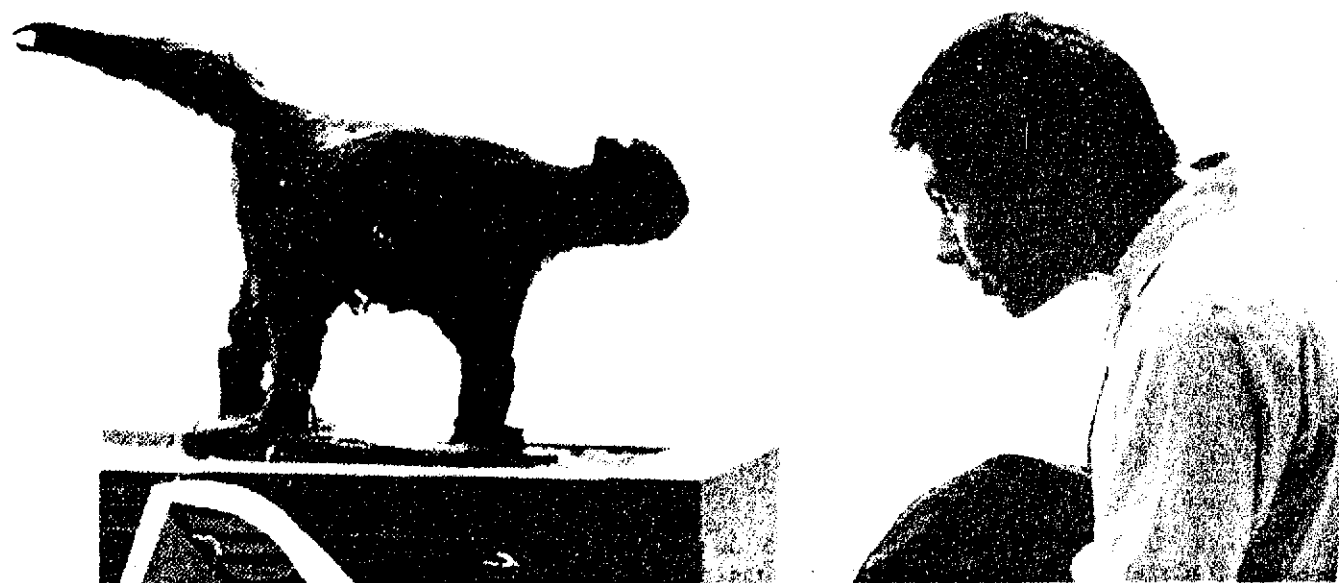

Even as he worked on one style he created works in another, producing in one "period" of effort more material than some artists create in a lifetime.

A collection of his sculptures, bronzes, ceramics, collages, sheet metal and cubist constructions, with several prints, some never before seen in the United States, has been gathered together in a presentation at the New York City Museum of Modern Art. The show spans 65 years of Picasso's creative life.

Youth Beat

Objective of most groups is to reach the boys before they register for the draft, try to convince the about-to-be-drafted that the conscientious objector route is the intelligent way to go. Quakers are big in the act. Some schools wisely recognize that total information on the draft laws should be made available in the school system itself. No need to force the kids children and their coming mentors into underground groups.

How Wrong Can You Be Department: So-called fashion authorities predicted "fall of the skirt" in 1967. Said Glamour magazine in February of this year. "For town, short skirts have had it. They've gone so far out you won't even be seeing them around any more." Take another look! "The owners of a posh New York restaurant did just that - refused entry to guess who, one of Glamour's senior editors. The reason: skirt too short!" We continue to predict short, short skirts, way out history more blouse-shorts, shifty skirts. Teens will stay short. It's their identity. Young adults don't and won't abandon the mod look to the teens. Meanwhile, the fashion magazines, the high priced international design set and the trade papers continue to crank out predictions that fall as skirts continue to rise.

Turtlenecks Sticking Out: More and more turtlenecks appearing on men. Evening shirts are coming on big for wear with dinner jackets. Stylish restaurants in New York, Chicago and San Francisco turn away well-tailored guys for lack of a necktie. Creep! Suppose the visitor really has a neck cast. Meanwhile the same places that turned away turtlenecks were hood winked by an editor wearing a silk ascot with a knit sport shirt open at the throat. Turtleneck sweaters and shirts worn under jackets represent an evolutionary fashion step. Fashion's progress has long been hampered by attempted strides that are too long.

The arbiters of taste, starting with fashion magazines and ending with restaurant owners, have their heads buried in the sand while the turtle types leave their necks out.

The Cake: Crumbles. Femme trio falls flat out of Miss Teenage America Pageant. Producers of the show pay them not to appear. Sticky bad scene. Hippie pickets plagued the departing parents and friends of contestants protesting the injustice of it all. Poor thinking on part of "The Cake" girls, then managers and P. R. flacks. A last start toward the top has now degenerated into a "way out" attitude that can end in oblivion. The blown appearance on CBS' Miss Teenage America telecast meant a loss of an audience of 30 million. The pageant has a responsibility to represent teens at their best. Rightfully has no time or patience with performers who don't want to measure up. Someone should give the girls a bit of good advice. Phony temperament left with the hippie hey-day. All of the hating and putting of the publicists in the fan and trade magazines won't retrieve the dissipated shot at maximum exposure on a great show. Congratulations to Stephanie Crane of St. Louis for her achievement in being named Miss Teenage America and CBS for a fine special and a proper stand on standards.

ROPE (ARK) STAR, Printed by Offset

THE DOLL CROP IS A RARE ONE this year. Mini Pros (top left) include Scrambling Quarterback and Dancing Cheerleader. Each is only six inches tall and the uniforms feature authentic colors and insignia of teams in the American and National Football Leagues. When you wind these dolls, the quarterback "scrambles" and the cheerleader dances. Every child's own little brother comes to life with That Kid (lower left). Pick up his right arm, he says, "Hey! That's my pitchin' arm." Pick him up and hug him, he says, "Put me down. You're funny lookin'." And there's more. He talks a blue streak. Plushiest pair of pals for teen-age swingers are Cheeta the Cat and Go Go Mouse (top right). These are dressed in the latest discotheque fashion. Baby Crawlalong (lower right) does just what her name indicates. Her young mistress controls her movements.

Santa's Pack Brimmeth Over

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—What would you like to have around the house after Christmas—a short order cook, an animal collector, a rocket construction crew, the proprietor of a knitting mill, a song-and-dance team, a puppeteer or an electronics engineer?

Once you decide, you'll find a toy or game in that category to get the kids off to a good start.

Secret agents and spies seem to have dropped out of Santa's pack this year to make room for the more practical pastime of eating. Many more toy kits are geared to culinary achievement than to derring-do.

For example, there's a Big Burger Grill powered by an electric bulb. It comes with mixers for frankfurter and hamburger rolls, pancakes and catsup and onions. It has a trap for the grease and a transparent cover prevents splattering.

A new candy bar set turns out an imaginative supply of goodies on Easy-bake Oven, powered by two electric light bulbs. And there's a kit for baking bubble gum and a dozen juvenile cake and cookie favorites. A cooling chamber makes sure delicacies are not too hot when grabbed.

Even the cleaning up can be taken care of with a jet action automatic dishwasher. It works on an ordinary faucet. But unlike mom's, it has a transparent lid so the kids can see the action.

For the wild animal enthusiast there's Wild Life, a game based on capturing animals alive for zoos, a Kenya Karry-all of caged jungle animals and, of course, all the stuffed tigers, lions and leopards that never seem to go out of style.

The heightened interest in spacecraft is evidenced in Count Down, a game based on NASA data for project Apollo, which involves step-by-step construction of rockets as well as moon launching and recovery.

Advanced design is emphasized in toyland's transportation replicas. Most unusual is a snorkel attachment to a fire truck. Both snorkel and its basket swivel. And there's a garden hose adapter that operates with real water, shooting 20 feet. (Not such a good idea for rainy day play in the family room.)

New for junior containers is Kint-O-Matic. It operates on giant mill loom principles and youngsters can turn out turtlenecks, mittens, scarves and even three-piece knitted suits.

New trends in dolls emphasize the mini and the mod. Notable in the mod category is a new group of singers, the Pip Squeaks. Just squeeze their arms gently and they give out with a groovy sound. Mini dancers are another all-star team. These five-inch doll darlings do way-out dance acts when wound up. Their costumes are inspired by Pop and Op art.

Go-Go Mouse is another exponent of the mini-mod trend. It's dressed in wild colors with a feather boa and high boots.

Most novel in the fast-growing boy-doll category is Scrambling Quarterback, a six-inch doll which imitates gridiron action realistically when wound up.

Play Pets are a new kind of hand puppet which put a nearly full figure into action, giving much more manipulative scope than the traditional head-atop-a-fabric skirt type.

It does seem that this year's toy crop will inspire home-makers, artists, music and animal lovers and give the combat troops and cannons a rest for the time being.

French Heads Twirl As Majorettes Make Scene

Army of charm comes to France.

By ROSETTE HARGROVE

PARIS—(NEA)—Majorettes may have become an integral part of American folklore. In France they are very definitely a recent acquisition to public life.

There are today 3,500 majorettes in what the French so euphemistically call "the army of charm and smiles." The first group was formed around four years ago in Nice by Dr. R. Toussaint. He had appreciated the battalion of pretty girls heading a parade he had seen when on a visit to the United States.

His idea caught on and since then 80 groups have been formed, each of 10 majorettes or more. And, as in the U.S., the time is coming when no celebration or parade will be complete without its advance guard of mini-uniformed girls.

Recently in the Parisian suburb of Saint Ouen the head majorettes of France held their first congress.

The average Frenchman who is inclined to think that the girls in the gay musical comedy uniforms are just out for a good time makes a great mistake. Recruiting is very selective, pointed out Guy David, 28-year old assistant director of the Fetes Committee at the Saint Ouen Town Hall. "The discipline is strict and the training equal to that of any amateur athlete."

No candidate's wearing spectacles need apply otherwise the girls are expected to be comely and graceful stand at least 5-6 and be between 15 and 25 years of age.

After admission to the group a candidate is placed on trial for a month. This is followed by three months' training to find out whether she is gifted for baton-twirling or the drums. Then there are at least five hours rehearsals every week for the "troupe," eight for the "sergeant majors" who, of course, represent the elite.

The girls learn rhythmic dancing with a professor from the Paris opera and baton-twirling.

According to David, whose great ambition is to contact an American group of majorettes, their French cousins have evolved a routine which differs slightly from theirs. The French have introduced more dance steps on the march and their own version of high stepping.

Majorettes stem mainly from the white-collar classes but there are also a good number of factory workers, dressmakers and others.

Last year an electronics expert perfected a hi-fi drum (which precedes the majorettes) which sends out martial music and is relayed by a tiny transistor hidden behind the drums. All the drummers have to do is mime the drum beats. The music is that of well-known orchestras and far superior, naturally, to any local brass band.

In this area, at least the French majorettes are miles ahead of their American counterparts, who march to the beat of a different drum.

Miracle No More Pesticide Poisoning

By HAL GULLIVER
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — A U.S. pesticide expert says it is a miracle that mass poisoning by an insecticide, similar to the poisoning of scores of persons in Colombia last week, has not occurred in this country.

"It could happen," says Dr. Samuel W. Simmons, chief of the U.S. Public Health Service's pesticides program at the Communicable Disease Center in Atlanta.

At least 76 men, women, and children in Chiquiquira, Colombia died last weekend after eating bread poisoned with a deadly insecticide whose effects are similar to nerve gas.

Another 86 Colombians are reported in critical condition despite antidotes rushed to Colombia from the United States.

More than 50 state and local health officials are meeting with Simmons in a conference on the investigation of chemical poisonings such as those in Colombia.

Commenting on the possibility of similar deaths in the United States, Simmons said in an interview there is little real regulation of the purchase of the transportation of pesticides.

"Take the loading of pesticides aboard ship, for instance. Ships are supposed never to load food with pesticides or poison. But the list of poisons is not kept up to date. A pesticide not on the list simply isn't considered poison," he said.

The recent deaths in Colombia, as well as poisonings in Mexico, Arcadia, Fla. and St. Louis, Mo., show the need for training state and local health officials in modern techniques of investigating chemical poisonings, Simmons said.

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — At one point toward the end of Tuesday night's NBC special, showing a softball game played last summer, actor James Garner walked into camera range. This led Jerry Lewis, an off-camera voice who had introduced himself as "the Jewish Joe Garagiola," to remark:

"Jim Garner reminds me of that old adage—whether you get on base or not, peanut butter will still stick to the roof of your mouth."

The sight of Garner and a lot of other theater and sports celebrities clowning on a baseball diamond did not remind this viewer of any other old adages. It did make one wonder who thought the game was a winter TV special and how NBC was persuaded to go along with the scheme.

The program, billed as the first annual all-star celebrity softball game, had Vin Scully, a professional announcer, calling the plays as if it were the World Series. Lewis tried to be funny and just sounded smart. An enormous assortment of comedians and professional baseball players hammed it up for an hour.

At the end, Scully called it "the most forgettable game of the year," and it is devoutly to be hoped that the first annual all-star celebrity softball game will also be the last—on television, anyway.

A pair of senior citizens and warriors, Dwight D. Eisenhower and Omar Bradley, discussed the conflict in Vietnam with Harry Reasoner for an all too short 30 minutes on CBS Tuesday night.

Former President Eisenhower observed almost tartly that he did not think anyone who is not "living this war" is in a position to criticize the way it is being handled.

Gen. Bradley, agreeing there was considerable confusion at home over Vietnam, said he thought that also included "some generals."

Bradley, recently returned from an inspection tour of the fighting areas, defended the bombing of North Vietnam. He said that it was nailing down an estimated half-million North Vietnamese defending the country and cleaning up after attacks—personnel who otherwise would be free to fight, and that it also was interfering with shipments of supplies.

Christmas Bulb Glows On

Back in 1919 the Harvey Ross family of suburban Chicago decorated its Christmas tree with the antique bulb, right. This December it will glow again for the 48th consecutive year. In contrast to the General Electric miniature lamps of that day are the new lighted ice lamps, which look like white snowballs until they're lighted, then produce a soft-colored glow. They come in a variety of colors, both for indoor and outdoor use.

RUSH TO MARRIAGE

Dear Helen: What makes girls of 17-19 so worried? If they aren't engaged, they write their hands and cry, "I'll never get married—I just KNOW I'm going to be an old maid!" This even from popular girls.

Then a lot of them, in desperation, take the first fellow who asks, even if he isn't half as nice as the guys they were dating in high school.

Maybe it has to do with the let-down you get after you graduate. Suddenly you aren't thrown with a bunch of potential boyfriends, but are on your own in an office where most of the men are married.

I didn't go to college, but I am certainly in no hurry to get married! I have a lot of living to do—travel, dating, maybe night school courses, learning about people and the world. If I get all these things while single, I'll be a much nicer wife—and not nearly so dissatisfied either.

And I plan to be very choosy too! After all, I'm turning myself into a good catch. The man who gets me has got to work at it! I think 25 is a good round age for a girl to become a bride, yes! — NOT THE MARRYING KIND—YET

Dear Not: Age-25 sounds fine to me. But somehow the gal who worries least about getting married finds the right guy first. Your time schedule may not run its full length, but I'll bet you have a long and happy marriage. — H

Dear Helen: I lived on a farm when I was younger. I always thought chickens were the meanest things alive because they'd single out a sick or deformed chicken and peck it to death.

But I've found out kids can be just as cruel. There's a girl at school who can't fix her hair very well, and she walks funny. She isn't pretty. Her clothes aren't right. It's like her folks are going out of their way to make her odd looking.

But she's nice to everyone, though kind of afraid to talk. Well, a group of girls pick at her and make fun of her all the time. They lead her on to say odd things, and then they tell all over how dumb she is. She can't defend herself. She doesn't know how.

I try to make it up to her, but then they hoot at me too. They've got this girl so scared she's afraid to tell the teachers. Is there anything more I can do to help her?—FED UP STUDENT

Dear Student: Yes! You can tell an understanding counselor about this situation, and you can enlist the aid of the NICE kids who believe in fair play.

I know a group of girls who made an "ugly duckling" their project. She never quite became campus queen (that only happens in story books) but by the time she graduated, she was no longer a forlorn nobody...And the girls who helped her benefited most, for they accomplished something—they saved a human being from the rag bag.—H.

PERSONAL TO MISERABLE 18: Get a job and leave home if you must, but don't choose marriage as an escape. When your family life is violently unhappy almost any road out can be mistaken for "love." Be careful that it doesn't lead you down a blind alley into more misery.—H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble, or just plain trouble, let Helen help YOU. She will also welcome your own amusing experiences. Address Helen Bottel in care of Hope Star.

Hopeful Owner Won't Be Found

BALTIMORE (AP) — A young man walked into the police station, placed a small bundle on the sergeant's desk and said "I found this in the alley."

The bundle was $5 bills, one hundred of them. Police think the money was lost after being withdrawn from a bank. It will be finder's keeper for 20-year-old George Stubbs if the loser doesn't claim the $500.

POWER

that sustains
may be found thru regular church attendance

BROKEN VOWS

A Vow Is A Serious Thing

Our promise and your performance reveal the quality of your soul.

A promise will make a friend but performance will keep him. Are you keeping your marriage vows, your vows to your church or synagog? When you make a vow to God, do you keep them or do you go AWOL on Him? "When thou shalt vow unto the Lord thy God, thou shalt not slack to pay it, for the Lord thy God will surely require it of thee." Faithful performance of good vows strengthens character, honors God and makes a better citizen.

WIN AT BRIDGE

Heart Ace Is Gilt-Edged

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Q—The bidding has been:

West North East South

Pass 2 ♣ Pass 1 ♠

Pass 3 ♠ Pass 2 ♠

Pass 4 ♠ Pass 5 ♠

Pass 6 ♠ Pass

You, South, hold:

♠ A Q 10 7 6 ♥ K J 4 ♦ K 3 2 ♣ J 7

What do you do now?

A—Bid six diamonds. You are in a slam now. Maybe you belong in diamonds—not spades. If not, your partner can correct back to spades.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Again East opens one club. You, South, hold:

♠ A Q 10 7 6 ♥ 2 ♦ A Q 10 7 6 5 ♣ 3

What do you do?

Answer Monday

Assassination Attempt

Lincoln's assassins also intended to kill Secretary of State Seward. One of John Wilkes Booth's accomplices broke into Seward's home and wounded him. He recovered, however, and kept the office of secretary of state under President Johnson.

One of the nicest things to know about an ace is that you don't have to play it at the first opportunity. Banks may lend money on aces, but they

The Family of Zula Jarrell would like to express our sincere appreciation for all the kindness shown during her illness and death. We are especially grateful to Dr. Branch and his nursing staff, Dr. Lawrence, Mrs. Gossnell, and all others who helped make our sorrow a little lighter.

NOMADS roam southern Iran today, as they have for centuries, but the landscape has changed. The Iranian government built this $5.5 million cement plant using $1.3 million in U.S. assistance. Facilities like this one have cut the price of cement in half and stimulated construction throughout the country.

YOUR DENTAL HEALTH In the News

Eating Habits Can Cause Teeth Discoloration

By WILLIAM LAWRENCE, D.D.S.

DEAR DR. LAWRENCE: My daughter's teeth keep turning black. It doesn't take long. A few weeks after they are cleaned by the dentist they get black all over again. Why is this? Can't it be prevented?

A—Most staining is a direct result of poor mouth care, allowing residual food to collect on teeth, forming what is called materia alba or white matter. This thin, soft, white layer of debris is stained by action of microorganisms. food, drink, drugs and tobacco; and then calcified by action of saliva and blood to form tartar.

The final result? Discolored teeth, ranging in shade from yellow to brown to black.

Main offenders are:

Food: Fruit and vegetable dyes; runny egg yolks, as in soft boiled eggs; licorice, gum balls.

Drink: Strong tea and coffee; grape juice. (Milk in tea precipitates tannic acid, thus sharply reducing staining.)

Drugs: Iron compounds (tonics); antibiotics, specially lozenge type dissolved in the mouth.

Tobacco: All kinds -- pipes, cigars and cigarettes with or without filters or holders.

As we get older our teeth stain even more readily because of tiny cracks in the enamel and exposed dentin, which absorb stains that resist even the most careful mouth hygiene.

Brushing after every meal and frequent regular prophylaxis by your dentist will help prevent staining of teeth.

DEAR DR. LAWRENCE: I clean my plastic dentures after every meal and I soak them every night, yet food sticks to them. I've tried many things but at this point I am getting disgusted. Please advise me what to do.

A—Some people have a special knack for collecting food on their teeth, even natural teeth. It's probably due to peculiar eating habits, type of food they choose to eat, reduced flow and/or thickness of saliva, or poor muscle control of cheeks, lips and tongue.

Denture wearers can overcome this by first making sure their teeth fit well, all surfaces are highly polished, and crevices between individual teeth are shallow.

Then practice eating. Don't limit your diet to soft foods as many denture wearers so often do. Eat slowly and sip liquids during meals, i.e., wine, water, coffee.

Seal Veteran Upends Phils for 1st Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
When the Oakland Seals are short-handed, hustling Gerry Odrowski can turn the deficit into a windfall.

Odrowski, Oakland's veteran penalty-killer, scored twice Thursday night as the Seals upended Philadelphia 3-1 for their first National Hockey League road victory.

The 29-year-old utility man shot the Seals to a 2-0 lead and they went on to snap a 10-game victory famine away from home.

In other games, Frank Mahovlich scored one goal and assisted on another as Toronto battled Detroit to a 3-3 deadlock and Minnesota earned a 1-1 tie with Montreal on Ted Taylor's goal late in the final period.

Both the Flyers and Seals were one man short in the first period when Odrowski converted Billy Harris' rebound. With teammate Mike Laughton serving a penalty in the middle period, Odrowski stole the puck from Philadelphia defenseman Jean Gauthier and fired an unassisted tally.

Defenseman Larry Cahan added an insurance goal and assisted on another as Toronto battled Detroit to a 3-3 deadlock and Minnesota earned a 1-1 tie with Montreal on Ted Taylor's goal late in the final period.

Despite the loss, the Flyers held their one-point lead in the NHL West Division race. Mahovlich, back in the Toronto line-up after missing four weeks while suffering from "depression and tension," scored his fifth goal in the first period and assisted on Mike Walton's tying marker with 6½ minutes to play in the final session.

This Dog Unique and Traditional

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Nero is a Dalmatian and a firehouse mascot, both of which make him a very traditional dog. But Nero also is unique: He has a charge account with a bakery.

Whenever Jack Watson, a bakery truck driver, stops at 14th St. and Central Ave., Nero bounds out of Fire Station 30, barking and whining, and heads for Watson.

Depending on how vocal he is, Nero gets one doughnut or two. The weekly bill, totaling 40 to 50 cents, is paid by the firemen, who think Nero is great.

The Hope Bobcats opened their basketball season against Triple A El Dorado last night and went down in defeat by a score of 83 to 55.

In the first contest the story was much the same as the local B Boys also took a licking by a score of 62 to 44 at the hands of El Dorado's B boys.

A large crowd turned out of the games.

FRAN TARKENTON

SAYS:

Despite anything I may have said to the contrary, there is a "scramble" in pro football.

I do scramble

As a matter of fact, almost every quarterback in professional football has scrambled at one time or another.

The scramble to define it is the reaction of an athlete in this case the quarterback to a situation in which there has been a breakdown in the pass protection, or a breakdown in the pass pattern the more likely occurrence.

When I go back to set up for a quick pass, and it isn't there because the receiver stumbles or the defensive back jams him and knocks him down or the linebacker gets a good drop and stands in the passing lane when I see this I scramble most of the time.

The way or the direction in which a quarterback scrambles is strictly instinctive. You then become a football player, reacting to the situation as it develops not consciously thinking of your moves, but executing them because they're natural.

Example No. 1
We're playing the Philadelphia Eagles and we're in a drive that reaches around their 30 yard line. I call a quick slant pass to Homer Jones and split end. The actual play is an X play.

As we come up to the line of scrimmage I see that the weak side linebacker has come inside their defensive end. Good. That leaves Homer an alley, but I have to get him quickly within three or four steps or their line-backer will be in the passing plane and in position to intercept. Furthermore, their weak side safety, Joe Scarpati, is favoring Homer's side.

The way the play developed, when I dropped back to pass, I saw Homer running a deeper slant than I wanted. So immediately I knew the pattern wasn't there and had to give myself an alternate route, to pass or to run the ball. I just couldn't stay in my six or seven-yard drop waiting for Homer to get free.

Instead, I veered right at a 45-degree angle and got around the defensive end when he and behind, who should be coming across the right side of the field, same as me, but good old Homer, I threw and he caught the ball for a 12 yard gain.

There is a cardinal rule of football that once the quarterback manages to maneuver outside of the pocket, he has an extra four or five seconds to pass. And you know that's murder on the defensive back.

In that same game against the Eagles, Norm Sneed of their side was able to do just that and hit fullback Tom Woodcock with a pass that set up their only touchdown.

To contain quarterbacks, we keep them from scrambling. There are two schools of defensive line play. One advocates the cautious approach, a contained rush that is designed to keep me inside. The Dallas Cowboys like to use it. The other advocates an all-out charge by three defensive linemen with one guy hanging back as a policeman, you'll find the Baltimore Colts favoring it.

On a hot day, a scramble can be a frustrating tactic for the defense. It tires guys out. Last year, against the Cowboys, I set some kind of record with a 30-second continuous scramble, reversing my field three different times.

Jim Colvin, who's now with me on the Giants, was a Cowboy then. He'd told me that when the play was over the Dallas coaches immediately sent two substitute line men on the field to give the boys a breather. But all four of the regular defensive line men headed for the sidelines. Incidentally, I was dead.

I tried to be quite sensitive about scrambling because it was supposed to be unorthodox. But in recent years the accusations haven't bothered me. Teams are increasingly aware of the threat of a quarterback with running ability. That accounts for the recent popularity of the moving pocket used by Kansas City and the rollout patterns.

Not in the past, I believe, but I'm not sure.

John on, hero of the Dodgers' 1955 pennant drive after he was brought up from the farm club following Tommy Davis' broken ankle, hit .276 last season with 11 home runs, although missed many games due to a broken ankle and a knee injury.

I was advised Grady, I pick up a six block him and then pick him around. Sooner or later, I'll get him back my way again.

Liberal Liberals

Many of the self-styled liberals around nowadays have become so sure they are right, they simply don't concede that others have equal freedoms," declared the University of Texas' Daily Texan.

The student newspaper thus summed up the problem with the direct-action militants of liberalism. The editorial comment was prompted by a band of peace-niks who recently sprawled on the floor around a Marine recruiting booth at UT and, as the Texan said, "marked up some of the Marine literature and in other ways made nuisances of themselves."

This sort of thing has become a fad among student leftists this semester. Staging these rather childish attempts to obstruct recruiting interviews indicates, in the words of the student editor, "a new type of conformity. There was a time when 'liberal' meant able to progress," declared the editor. "Now the term simply designates someone who is bucking norms and society."

One of the earlier campus mobsters illustrated perfectly the dangers of becoming so bigoted in the exercise of our rights that we deny others their rights. A gang of peace-niks had surrounded a recruiting booth and were attempting to keep students from getting through to talk to the recruiters. Two students approached the mob. One was a peacefully demonstrating. Please respect my right to enter."

The first student shoved and pushed until he forced his way through. The second, bearing his appeal to reason and respect for rights, was thrown back by the supposed liberals. This small incident was a model of the society in which the right depends on the might of the person seeking it. The strong can get their rights only by using force and the weak have no rights at all. Such a society embodies the attitudes which the activists seek to foster here.

Some conservatives have been accused of wanting to go back to the 19th century. But these "liberals" seem to want to go back much farther, to the jungle. — Dallas (Tex.) Morning News

Civil Servants Blow The Whistle

Civil servants have long been the butt of jokes which cast them in roles of inefficiency, complacency, and incompetence. According to the stereotype, the average governmental employee is a drone who wastes away the day taking coffee breaks, placing bets in football pools and thinking up ways to refrain from working. And while this description may or may not be accurate it persists in the minds of taxpayers who must support the bureaucracy.

But in Mobile, government employees have reversed the situation, this time pointing a finger at proposed squandering. It seems that 500 employees of the U. S. Corps of Engineering don't want a new federal building built for them and contend that the present one is quite adequate.

They say in favor of the proposed $6 million edifice are local merchants — the same sort of fellows who usually complain about taxes and rampant federal spending — but don't mind dipping their own hands into the old pork barrel. — Montgomery (Ala.) Alabama Journal

Thinks Mixed Drinks Would Help City

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Little Rock Mayor Martin Borchert said Thursday that if mixed drinks could be sold legally across open bars the city would benefit in two ways.

Borchert said the city would receive some taxes on the sale of drinks if open bars were legalized and that Little Rock would be the site of more national conventions.

"I can't say I favor either open or private bars but there is no advantage to having private clubs," he said. "I can see no disadvantage to open bars."

Board Group Doesn't Like Either One

CUMMINS PRISON FARM, Ark. (AP) — Three of the five members of the state Penitentiary Board indicated Thursday that they did not support either of the known applicants for the job of state prison system superintendent.

Thomas O. Murton, assistant state prison superintendent in charge of Tucker Prison Farm, and J. R. Price, assistant to O. E. Bishop, the present superintendent, are the only persons who have applied for the job.

The Board also indicated it might ask Bishop to stay on until a replacement can be found.

Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller, who has said he thinks Murton is the logical person for the job, said he would meet with the Board at its regular monthly meeting Wednesday at Little Rock.

John Haley of Little Rock, Rockefeller's only appointee on the Board, was the only member of the group who said he supported Murton.

Chairman Jeff D. Wood of Cabot, Grady Woolley of El Dorado and L. M. Green of Silvana Springs said they did not favor Murton.

Woolley said Murton had done a "wonderful job" at Tucker but that he did not have "the experience or know-how" to handle the inmates at Cummins. Tucker is primarily for youthful offenders.

Murton, a former professor of penology at Southern Illinois University, said it had been his experience that the offenders between 14 and 19 years of age were more difficult to handle.

"Had I thought I did not have the qualifications for the job, I wouldn't have applied," Murton said. "I realize Cummins is more complex but I have confidence that I can handle it."

Wood said the Board had not discussed Price's application but Woolley said he personally did not think Price was qualified. He said Price did not have the experience to handle the top job although he was doing a good job as Bishop's assistant.

Woolley said he had talked with Bishop about the possibility of him continuing on the job. Bishop's resignation becomes effective Dec. 31 but he told the Board Nov. 1 that he would stay on until it found a successor.

Sees Enough of Soft Attitude

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Lt. Col. Carl E. Miller, assistant director of the Arkansas State Police, said Thursday that law officers had had enough of the bowing and fawning of law and corrections and "a super soft attitude toward the criminal."

Miller told a conference of the Arkansas Law Enforcement Officers Association that city, county and state law enforcement agencies must recognize criminals for what they are.

He said that the state must and law enforcement officials are reversing the growing crime rates and added that the law must play a major role in aiding authorities to gain public support for vice control.

Not as Many Draft Card Droppers as Hershey Expected

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Draft chief Lewis B. Hershey says he isn't getting as many draft cards as he expected from Vietnam war protesters—but he is receiving plenty of drivers' licenses.

About three of four cards he receives from protesters turn out to be drivers' licenses or other nondraft cards, Hershey said Thursday.

"I suppose I'm a trusting soul," the 74-year-old Selective Service System director said. "When I read in the newspaper that somebody said he turned in his draft card, I suppose he did."

"But it was surprising to me, the low number of real draft cards that were turned in," added the lieutenant general in a telephone interview. "I'm a little disillusioned, but I must say I'm happy to be disillusioned about this."

He cited as an example the "basketful, about a thousand" draft cards that leaders of the Oct. 21 protest march on the Pentagon claimed they were turning in.

Only 297 persons actually turned in valid cards, the Justice Department said, after it sorted them out.

"There have been times when 90 per cent were not real cards," Hershey said. "They turn in all kinds of things."

He said he could provide no nationwide figures on the number of legitimate cards turned in because those sent to state draft officials or other government agencies are passed along to the appropriate local boards without going through his office.

Hershey said many of the phony cards apparently come from "kids in a group" who put something in the bag so they won't look bad to their friends.

"A lot of them participate in these protests until it starts to pinch," was Hershey's opinion, referring to penalties for mutilating or throwing away draft cards.

Burning one—a violation of federal law—could result in up to 5 years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine.

Returning one—failure to carry it as required by draft regulations—can result in a delinquency ruling, a D-A classification and immediate "greetings" from Uncle Sam.

But card-burning is hard to prove, since the evidence goes

Big Dip in State Revenue

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The state Revenue Department announced Thursday that it had collected $13,414,392 in general revenues in November, almost $6 million less than the figure collected in the same month last year.

The collections dipped because the 1966 figure of $19,403,846 was swelled by a dual collection of the final payment of the 1965 state income tax at the same time that the 1966 tax was being withheld from paychecks, up in smoke. Since Aug. 30, 1965, when the law took effect, the Justice Department has investigated uncounted card-burning cases and ended up filing charges in only 21. There were 14 convictions and 2 dismissals upon other convictions.

Two other cases were dismissed because the defendants were found to have mental disorders. Three cases are awaiting trial.

Card-dropping is easier to prove, but since final action is up to each protester's local draft board the national draft headquarters has no detailed figures.

Says Majority Like the TV Program

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The chairman of the state Democratic Party, Leon B. Catlett of Little Rock, said Thursday that he was sure all Democrats don't agree with all of the info "68 programs but that a majority are enthusiastic about all of the programs.

He said that the weekly television program is presented as a function of the Democratic Party and was not meant to be a function of the Democratic State Committee.

Fayetteville Mayor Don Trumbo, a member of the committee, said earlier this week that the television program should not be considered a voice of the party and that it had never been authorized by the committee.

J. P. "Sonny" Lybrand Jr., the party's executive secretary, said the money was not coming out of regular committee funds but was being raised by Catlett and others.

Asks Treaty to Ban Atom Weapons Sale

By ROBERT GOLDENSTEIN
AP Science Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — The heads of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission and the International Atomic Energy Agency called today for a nonproliferation treaty to prohibit the acquisition of nuclear weapons by additional countries.

Their pleas highlighted the 25th anniversary observance of the world's first self-sustaining nuclear chain reaction at the University of Chicago—a two-day event attended by several hundred leading nuclear scientists.

Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, chairman of the AEC, said a nonproliferation treaty plus effective safeguards against diverting nuclear fuel to bomb production are essential.

Both steps must be taken, he said, "if programs for expanding the peaceful applications of nuclear energy are to be pursued with maximum effectiveness in an atmosphere of mutual trust where nations can feel assured that other nations are not engaged in nuclear developments that could threaten their security."

"The plutonium produced in nuclear power reactors has a massive potential for good or evil," he said.

Seaborg said that projections indicate that by 1980 enough plutonium will be produced throughout the world each day to furnish fuel for 100 million kilowatt days of electric power "or alternatively to furnish the explosive ingredient for tons of nuclear weapons."

Sigvard Eklund, director-general of the International Atomic Energy Agency, Vienna, predicted that unless there is a complete draft of such a treaty by mid-1968, "the momentum generated for this issue will be lost, and the prospects for an agreement will be nullified."

He said the momentum for such an agreement was generated when the United States and Russia submitted to the eight-nation disarmament committee in Geneva more than three months ago identical draft proposals for nonproliferation.

He said, however, that amendments submitted to the committee by delegates dealing with specific views have presented difficulties.

Prison Board Refuses to Ban Play

CUMMINS PRISON FARM, Ark. (AP)—John Haley of Little Rock, Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller's appointee on the state Prison Board, attempted unsuccessfully Thursday to persuade the Board to rescind a resolution preventing Tucker Prison Farm inmates from participating in a play at Little Rock about the Arkansas penal system.

Haley told the Board that the use of prisoners in such a manner is an administrative matter and added that inmates participation in community affairs is well established.

The Board adopted a resolution Wednesday to prevent the nine convicts from playing roles in an original drama, "Of Prisons and Men," by Dr. James D. Baines, the Arkansas Arts Center's playwright in residence.

Haley was not present when the resolution was adopted. He arrived later and failed to get a second on his motion that the resolution be rescinded.

The inmates have been committing to Little Rock nightly for rehearsals. The play is scheduled to open next Wednesday.

The Prison Board adopted the resolution after two former officials of Tucker filed a motion with Circuit Judge Henry W. Smith of Pine Bluff asking him to halt the prison's cooperation in the play.

The motion was filed by Jim Bruton, a former superintendent at Tucker, and Jess Wilson, a former warden at the prison. Both are charged with excessive punishment

Alcoholism, Nation's No. 3 Health Problem, Just Has No Cure

By MARY ANITA LASETER

This week has been Alcoholism Information Week, so, perhaps, you have read or heard something about the public education campaign designed to give a better understanding of the problem of alcoholism. Just before the season of Christmas seems like a perfect time to put up warning signals and helpful detour signs regarding the nation's number three health problem, alcoholism.

For it is a health problem, but, fortunately, it is one that can be treated. Like diabetes, there is no cure and treatment must continue throughout a lifetime. The difference in these two diseases is that in one the victim must always have a substance (insulin) and in the other he can NEVER have even a small amount (of alcohol). Just as no one would dare be cruel enough to hide insulin from a diabetic, so there should never be a Joker who tricks an alcoholic into taking "just a taste" of anything with even a small amount of alcohol content. "Only a bit of arsenic" would be more humane to an alcoholic.

A. D. "Buddy" Keeley, executive director of the Arkansas Commission on Alcoholism, said that the commission is not against alcohol itself, because everyone is not addicted to it. Besides that, it is the second largest source of income to the federal government with the tax. (What's first? Internal revenue.) Also, many people make their living legally, through alcohol, beginning with the grain grower.

So much for the good side of the picture. There is another side. Because there is another side, there is a rehabilitation center in Arkansas, located in Hot Springs. That may come as a surprise to many who only thought there was a rehab. center for maimed and paralyzed people, but the Spa also offers hope for the alcoholic with physical and educational rehabilitation. A.C.A. Director Keeley says the great hope for the alcoholic lies in research, and until the answer is found to this medical problem two steps are necessary: total abstinence by the alcoholic and deep understanding by family and friends.

First, alcoholics are sent to a hospital for a "drying-out" period and then back to their community. Alcoholics Anonymous program. This is AA's 32nd Christmas, which brings us back to the idea expressed in the opening paragraph of this little commentary. It also brings to mind a quotation from one of the anonymous founders of this organization. He said in reference to the current Yuletide season, "Never have we known more reasons for wonder, for joy, and for gratitude. In these distraught times of conflict and peril, we have been enabled to find an always increasing measure of peace within ourselves, and with the world in which we live."

Hm-m-m. Sounds like the Christmas story manifested in everyday life. Would that the world could "get the message!"

Bombs Used to Counter New Attack

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP)—American B52 Stratofortresses unloaded 150,000 pounds of bombs over the demilitarized zone today to counter possible fresh North Vietnamese thrusts after the second straight day of clashes between U.S. and Communist troops below the DMZ.

The eight-engine bombers blasted suspected Communist troop concentrations four miles northeast of the U.S. Marine outpost at Con Thien in a follow-up of a B52 raid Thursday on Red troop and artillery positions six miles north of Con Thien.

The latest clash along the frontier came Friday when North Vietnamese troops opened up on a column of U.S. Marine amphibious tractors 5 1/2 miles east of the artillery base at Gio Linh. The Communists slammed 50 rounds from 60mm mortars into the column along with machine gun and small arms fire, killing one Marine and wounding 13.

The Marines fought back with artillery and mortars, and the Navy destroyer Leary in the Tonkin Gulf off North Vietnam joined in blasting the Communist positions. The Navy said the Leary knocked out several Communist mortars. There was no report on Communist casualties.

The Marine amphibious tractors came under fire while they trundled along the South China Sea coast about two miles south of the DMZ.

Other Marine units, meanwhile, reported uncovering 14 more Communist bodies from a four-hour battle Thursday some two miles north-northeast of the outpost of Con Thien and only 200 yards south of the buffer zone.

In Thursday's action, the Marines charged through a savage barrage of enemy machine gun and mortar fire to drive North Vietnamese troops from bunkers. The finding of the 14 bodies raised to 40 the number of enemy killed in this battle, headquarters said. Marine casualties were put at 15 dead and 5 wounded. The Marines also reported capturing 17 individual and nine crew-served weapons plus one 60mm mortar, 1,000 rounds of small-arms ammunition and 111 rounds of 82mm mortar.

New action flared briefly near Dak To in the central highlands, scene of a three-week battle that ended Thanksgiving Day when U.S. paratroopers captured Hill 875.

U.S. Headquarters said Communist gunners poured mortars and heavy artillery rockets into an artillery base nine miles west-northwest of Dak To which supports paratroopers of the U.S. 173rd Airborne Brigade. One American was killed and wounded in the three-hour barrage Friday night.

Shepard said he had not applied for the job.

Scott said he told Shepard that the governor definitely would only hire a professional, and that Shepard then informed him that he had been a law enforcement officer for 14 years.
